Read on your PC, Mac, smart phone, tablet or Kindle device. Here Is A Preview Of What Youll Learn...The male pattern baldness or Androgenetic Alopecia occurs in both men and women, but often refer to the general loss of hair among men. The typical pattern of male baldness begins at the hairline. The hairline gradually moves backward (recedes) and forms an M shape. Eventually the hair becomes finer, shorter, and thinner, and creates a U-shaped (or horseshoe) pattern of hair around the sides of the head. While various factors contribute to balding, among these are genetics, hormone, and age. Other theories came about to explain hair loss among men but most of them were backed-up by research. Several ways were also done to make the hair fuller in appearance such as hair weaving, using wig, and hair transplanting. Medications are as well provided to promote hair growth. The best thing, however, is to take good care of the hair. If by chance a person has in his genes to lose hair earlier, counseling can help him adjust to his condition and appearance.
